

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A semiconductor memory in which the protection state of data in a nonvolatile memory can be changed quickly and which provides sufficient security. A volatile 5 protection state specification section controls the protection state of data in the nonvolatile memory. A nonvolatile initial state store section determines the initial state of the protection state specification section.